

To date, the US has been a leader in both the development of the Internet, and its use as a factor in the growth of economic activity. This will help turn that around.